During the two days, May 27th and May 29th, BWC Financial Education, together with 51jobs held seminars on the topic “Application of Characterology in Human Resource Management” respectively in Guangzhou and Shenzhen.

In the event, we were honored to invite an expert in human resource management, Mr. Fung from Hong Kong to be the speaker. As leadership management involves various models and theories, when it comes to practice, the actual results would vary from person to person. Therefore, in the seminar, Mr. Fund introduced the idea of combining characterology and management theories, while also summarized the prevalent theories of characterology. Furthermore, Mr. Fund clearly analyzed the working classes/ hierarchy involved in management, as well as the corresponding management models. Finally, Mr. Fund pointed out the role of characterology in management, which inspired and benefited the attendees. During the seminar, there were active interactions between guests and the speaker. Overall, the event was held successfully with all the attendees giving us satisfactory feedbacks by stating that they learned the application of characterology in management from another angle and the learning points would be useful in their career.
